STUDENT INVOLVEMENT

The Columbus School District is committed to the idea that students should be actively involved in their education. This can include educational planning and evaluation. In order for this to happen, student input in decisions is encouraged.

Student Councils are invited to attend all Board of Education and committee meetings. School administration should take steps to involve students in decision making whenever possible. The teaching staff should take steps to seek feedback from students regarding instruction, curriculum, and co/extra-curricular programs.

The Board of Education encourages students who have concerns to contact their building principals, the Superintendent, or register to speak at Board of Education meetings.
